Fall brings lots of different sports seasons. One of the best would have to be volleyball. Allendale girls volleyball is off to a bit of a shaky start so far, but the team continues to put up a very good fight. The Falcons have a new coaching staff at both varsity and JV, and can hopefully turn around the Falcon's losing streak since 2005. This year the team has high hopes to earn a district, conference, or regional banner to hang in the gym.

FNN interviewed the new varsity coach, Amy Wierenga. She is ambitious and excited for the season. When asked about her goals for the team this year she stated, "My goals for AHS volleyball are to develop a more confident and competitive program while instilling lifelong skills and lessons amongst our young student athletes."

Allendale volleyball has games every week, although because of COVID each player is allowed only two tickets for family and guests. So far for conference games varsity is 0-3, JV and freshmen are both 1-2. Do not let these records fool you; the games are tight and the Falcons put up a great fight against every team.
